UNESCO World Heritage Lavaux visit and wine tasting

The Lavaux Vineyards Terraces, named World Heritage Site by UNESCO in 2007, illustrate a thousand years of labor. To make the most of the long hours of sunshine, man reduced the slopes by forming terraces in order to produce a highly appreciated wine: Chasselas. Discovering a wine cellar is the satisfaction of a personalized approach to winegrowing and its culture, including regional culinary specialties and the encounter with a region, which has helped to shape its history.
